It is your responsibility to know your insurance benefits including co-payment amounts, co-insurance percentages, deductibles, and the services that are and are not covered under your plan. Your insurance policy is a contract between you and the insurance company. The financial responsibility for services rendered is your responsibility regardless of whether or not your insurance pays for these services. You are responsible for notifying us of any change or lapse in your insurance coverage. If you do not have active insurance coverage or authorization for a particular date of service, you will be charged our private pay rate for that date. Co-payments are due at time of service.

Thrive Speech Pathology can provide a superbill which you can submit to your insurance company if you have another insurance provider.
